Washington, D.C.

Erika Suh Holmberg is a Litigation associate in the Washington, D.C. office of Gibson, Dunn & Crutcher.

Erika earned her J.D. from Harvard Law School in 2022, where she was an Articles Editor for the Harvard International Law Journal and served on the executive boards of the Asian Pacific American Law Students Association and HLS Advocates for Human Rights. She also published a student note that explored how Twitter could improve its approach to moderating world leaders' potentially violence-inspiring online speech, which earned first prize in the Harvard Journal of Law & Technology student note competition (35 Harv. J.L. & Tech. 309 (2021)). Prior to law school, she worked as a paralegal at the Antitrust Division of the U.S. Department of Justice for three years.

Erika graduated magna cum laude with a B.A. in Political Science and East Asian Studies from Columbia University in 2016, where she was elected to the Phi Beta Kappa Society and received departmental honors and recognition for her senior thesis, The UNHCR in China: Exploring Why North Korean Defectors are Denied Their Right to International Protection.

Erika is proficient in Mandarin Chinese and French and speaks Japanese and Korean at an elementary level.

Erika is admitted to practice in the District of Columbia.
