Marian Fowler's recent arrival as a partner in the firm's Washington D.C., office drew significant coverage from leading legal and industry publications, many of which highlighted the continued growth of the firm's Investment Funds Practice Group.

Global Legal Insights described Marian as a seasoned lawyer "specializing in the regulation of investment advisers and their funds – including private equity, venture, credit, registered and real estate funds."

In an interview with Law360, Shukie Grossman, the firm's Global Chair of the Investment Funds Practice Group, said that the practice is "continuously growing" and that "in canvassing the market, we determined that there was literally no one better positioned than Marian to join us, and to continue that expansion."

Global Legal Chronicle noted that Marian was general counsel and chief compliance officer at Thrive Capital Management before joining the firm. She is also a former regulator, having served as Senior Special Counsel to the Director of the Division of Investment Management at the SEC and as Senior Counsel in the Investment Company Rulemaking Office.
