1. Sebelius v. Auburn Regional Medical Center*, No. 11-1231 (D.C. Cir., 642 F.3d 1145; cert. granted June 25, 2012; argued on Dec. 4, 2012). Whether the 180-day statutory time limit under 42 U.S.C. § 1395oo(a)(3), for filing an appeal with the Provider Reimbursement Review Board from a final Medicare payment determination made by a fiscal intermediary is subject to equitable tolling.

   Decided Jan. 22, 2013 (568 U.S. __). D.C. Circuit/Reversed and remanded. Justice Ginsburg for a 9-0 Court (Sotomayor, J., concurring). The Court held that (1) Section 1395oo(a)(3)'s 180-day statutory time limit for filing an appeal of Medicare reimbursements with the Provider Reimbursement Review Board (PRRB) is not jurisdictional, (2) the HHS Secretary's regulation extending Section 1395oo(a)(3)'s 180-day window to three years after notice of the reimbursement amount upon a showing of "good cause" is a permissible interpretation of Section 1395oo(a)(3), and (3) the Secretary's regulatory requirement is not subject to equitable tolling. In 2006, Respondent hospitals learned that there had been a systematic undercalculation of their Medicare reimbursements from 1987 through 1994. Within 180-days of learning about the miscalculation, the hospitals filed an appeal with the PRRB, seeking remuneration for the underpayment. The Secretary of Health and Human Services had adopted a regulation permitting hospitals to file appeals for up to three years from the time they received word of their reimbursement rate from the financial contractor, if they could show "good cause" for failing to meet the usual 180-day deadline set by Section 1395oo(a)(3). Because the hospitals had filed more than ten years after expiration of the statutory deadline, the PRRB dismissed the appeals on grounds that it lacked jurisdiction and had no equitable powers to extend the window beyond the Secretary's three year outer limit. The D.C. Circuit reversed, finding that equitable tolling was available to the hospitals as a matter of fairness. The Supreme Court disagreed, holding that Section 1395oo(a)(3) did not limit PRRB's jurisdiction to hear the hospital's appeals because Congress did not clearly state that Section 1395oo(a)(3) was jurisdictional and that the Secretary's regulation was both reasonable and not subject to equitable tolling. The Court noted that it had never applied the presumption of equitable tolling to an agency's internal appeal deadline, and explained that the imposition of tolling would "essentially gut the Secretary's [time] requirement." Because the Secretary's administrative regime survived Chevron review, it was entitled to deference, and the Respondents' complaint was lawfully time-barred.

2. Lozman v. Riviera Beach*, No. 11-626 (11th Cir., 649 F.3d 1259; cert. granted Feb. 21, 2012; SG as amicus, supporting Petitioner; supplemental briefing on mootness ordered Aug. 14, 2012; argued on Oct. 1, 2012). Whether a floating structure that is indefinitely moored, receives power and other utilities from shore, and is not intended to be used in maritime transportation or commerce constitutes a "vessel" under 1 U.S.C. § 3, thus triggering federal maritime jurisdiction.

   Decided Jan. 15, 2013 (568 U.S. __). Eleventh Circuit/Reversed. Justice Breyer for a 7-2 Court. Sotomayor, J., dissenting; joined by Kennedy, J.). Petitioner Lozman's floating home was a house-like plywood structure with empty bilge space underneath the main floor to keep it afloat. He had it towed several times before deciding on a marina owned by the City of Riviera Beach. After various disputes with Lozman and unsuccessful efforts to evict him from the marina, the City brought a federal admiralty lawsuit in rem against the floating home, seeking a lien for dockage fees and damages for trespass. Lozman moved to dismiss the suit for lack of admiralty jurisdiction. The Supreme Court held that Lozman's floating home was not a "vessel" for purposes of 1 U.S.C. § 3, and therefore federal maritime jurisdiction was not triggered. The Court reasoned that, except for the fact that the structure floated, nothing about the floating home suggested that it was intended to transport people or cargo over water. The Court also observed that its interpretation of the statute was consistent with the statute's language and purpose, which "revealed little reason to classify floating homes as vessels" because owners of floating homes cannot easily escape liability by sailing away from their homes; faced no special sea dangers; and did not significantly engage in port-related commerce. Finally, the Court noted that its interpretation was consistent with state law in States in which owners of floating homes had congregated in communities, as those laws treat structures that meet the "floating home" definition like ordinary land-based homes rather than like "vessels."

3. Already, LLC v. Nike, Inc.*, No. 11-982 (2d Cir., 663 F.3d 89; cert. granted June 25, 2012; SG as amicus, supporting Vacatur and Remand; argued on Nov. 7, 2012). Whether a federal district court is divested of Article III jurisdiction over a party's challenge to the validity of a federally registered trademark if the registrant promises not to assert its mark against the party's then-existing commercial activities.

   Decided Jan. 9, 2013 (568 U.S. __). Second Circuit/Affirmed. Chief Justice Roberts for a 9-0 Court (Kennedy, J., concurring; joined by Thomas, Alito, and Sotomayor, JJ.). Nike filed suit, alleging that two of Already's athletic shoes violated Nike's Air Force 1 trademark. Already denied the allegations and filed a counterclaim challenging the validity of Nike's Air Force 1 trademark. While the suit was pending, Nike issued a "Covenant Not to Sue," promising not to raise any trademark or unfair competition claims against Already or any affiliated entity based on Already's existing footwear designs, or any future Already designs that constituted a "colorable imitation" of Already's current products. Nike then moved to dismiss its claims with prejudice, and to dismiss Already's counterclaim without prejudice on the ground that the covenant had extinguished the case or controversy. Already opposed dismissal of its counterclaim, contending that Nike had not established that its covenant had mooted the case. The Supreme Court applied the voluntary cessation doctrine and held that Nike's unconditional and irrevocable covenant not to enforce its trademark against a competitor's existing products and any future "colorable imitations" mooted Already's action to have the trademark declared invalid. The breadth of Nike's covenant was sufficient to satisfy the voluntary cessation doctrine because it was unconditional and irrevocable and covered not just current or previous designs, but also colorable imitations. Once Nike demonstrated that the covenant encompassed all of Already's allegedly unlawful conduct, it was incumbent on Already to indicate that it engages in or has sufficiently concrete plans to engage in activities that would arguably infringe Nike's trademark yet not be covered by the covenant. Because Already failed to do so, the case was moot.

4. Smith v. United States, No. 11-8976 (D.C. Cir., 651 F.3d 30; cert. granted June 21, 2012; limited to Question 2; argued on Nov. 6, 2012). Whether withdrawing from a conspiracy prior to the statute of limitations period negates an element of a conspiracy charge such that, once a defendant meets his burden of production that he did so withdraw, the burden of persuasion rests with the Government to prove beyond a reasonable doubt that he was a member of the conspiracy during the relevant period.

Decided Jan. 9, 2013 (568 U.S. __). D.C. Circuit/Affirmed. Justice Scalia for a 9-0 Court. Petitioner was convicted of, among other things, criminal conspiracy to distribute illegal narcotics, and argued that the district court erred in instructing the jury that he must prove beyond a reasonable doubt that he did not withdraw from the conspiracy outside the applicable statute of limitations. The Court of Appeals affirmed his conviction, and the Supreme Court affirmed. The Court reasoned that requiring a defendant to prove withdrawal does not violate the Due Process Clause because "[w]ithdrawal does not negate an element of the conspiracy crimes," and "although union of withdrawal with a statute-of-limitations defense can free the defendant of criminal liability, it does not place upon the prosecution a constitutional responsibility to prove that he did not withdraw." Instead, as with other affirmative defenses, the burden is properly placed on the defendant. Moreover, although Congress could have reassigned the burden to the prosecution, it did not do so here—a "practical and fair" approach because "[o]n the matter of withdrawal, the informational asymmetry heavily favors the defendant."

5. Los Angeles County Flood Control v. Natural Resources*, No. 11-460 (9th Cir., 673 F.3d 880; cert. granted June 25, 2012; limited to Question 2; SG as amicus, supporting Neither Party; argued on Dec. 4, 2012). In South Florida Water Management District v. Miccosukee Tribe of Indians, 541 U.S. 95, 105 (2004), the Supreme Court held that transfer of water within a single body of water cannot constitute a "discharge" for purposes of the Clean Water Act. The question presented is whether when water flows from one portion of a river that is navigable water of the United States into a lower portion of the same river, through a concrete channel or other engineered improvement in the river constructed for flood and stormwater control as part of a municipal separate storm sewer system, there can be a "discharge" from an "outfall" under the Clean Water Act.

   Decided Jan. 8, 2013 (568 U.S. __). Ninth Circuit/Reversed and remanded. Justice Ginsburg for a 9-0 Court (Alito, J., concurring in the judgment only). The Court held that the flow of water from an improved portion of a navigable waterway into an unimproved portion of the same waterway does not qualify as a "discharge of a pollutant" under the Clean Water Act. The district court found that the record was insufficient to warrant a finding that Petitioner's "municipal separate storm sewer systems," concrete channels within the Los Angeles and San Gabriel Rivers, had discharged pollutants into the rivers. The Ninth Circuit reversed, holding that a discharge had occurred when polluted water detected in the improved portion of the waterways flowed downstream into the unimproved portions of the same waterways. In keeping with the Court's holding in South Florida Water Management District v. Miccosukee Tribe, 541 U.S. 95, 109-112 (2004), where it held that the transfer of polluted water between "two parts of the same water body" is not a discharge, the Court reversed. Because of its prior holding in Miccosukee, the Court noted that it was "hardly surprising" that both parties and the United States as amicus curiae agreed that the flow of polluted water from one portion of a river, through a concrete channel, and then into a lower portion of the same river does not constitute a "discharge." In Miccosukee, polluted water was removed from and then returned to the same water body; here, the Court reasoned, polluted water simply flowed "from one portion of the water body to another." Unless the transfer of polluted water is between "meaningfully distinct water bodies," as the Court explained in Miccosukee, it does not qualify as a "discharge" under the Clean Water Act.

6. Tibbals v. Carter*, No. 11-218 (6th Cir., 644 F.3d 329; cert. granted Mar. 19, 2012; argued on Oct. 9, 2012). (1) Whether capital prisoners have a right to competence in habeas proceedings under Rees v. Peyton, 384 U.S. 312 (1966), which involved an incompetent death row inmate's attempt to withdraw his certiorari petition. (2) Whether a court can order an indefinite stay of habeas proceedings under Rees.

   Decided Jan. 8, 2013 (568 U.S. __). Sixth Circuit/Reversed. Justice Thomas for a 9-0 Court. Decided with Ryan v. Gonzales, No. 10-103. The Court held that state prisoners adjudged incompetent have no statutory right to a stay of their federal habeas corpus proceedings. The Ninth Circuit and the Sixth Circuit, citing different federal statutes, had both concluded that death row inmates are entitled to a suspension of their federal habeas proceedings when found incompetent. The Supreme Court reversed both courts. Specifically, the Court held that its prior decision in Rees v. Peyton, 384 U.S. 312 (1966) (per curiam), did not recognize a statutory right to competence in federal habeas proceedings. The Court also held that 18 U.S.C. § 3599, which guarantees a right to federally funded counsel, does not provide a state prisoner with the right to suspend his federal habeas proceedings when he is adjudged incompetent. The Court reasoned that the assertion of such a right lacked any basis in the provision's text and would be difficult to square with the Court's constitutional precedents. The Court went on to note that given the backward-looking, record-based nature of habeas proceedings, counsel can generally provide effective representation to a habeas petitioner regardless of the petitioner's competence. After rejecting 18 U.S.C. § 3599 as a statutory basis for the right to competence in habeas proceedings, the Court also held that 18 U.S.C. § 4241 does not include a right to competence in habeas proceedings because it is inapplicable to habeas proceedings on its face, applying only to federal defendants and to trial proceedings prior to sentencing and at any time after the commencement of probation or supervised release. Finally, the Court held that where competence is questioned and the prisoner's claims could potentially benefit from his or her assistance, a district court should "take into account the likelihood that the petitioner will regain competence in the foreseeable future" and should not issue an indefinite stay that would "merely frustrate[] the State's attempts to defend its presumptively valid judgment."

7. Ryan v. Gonzales*, No. 10-930 (9th Cir., 623 F.3d 1242; CVSG May 31, 2011; cert. opposed Feb. 9, 2012; cert. granted Mar. 19, 2012; SG as amicus, supporting Petitioners; argued on Oct. 9, 2012). Whether 18 U.S.C. § 3599(a)(2), which provides that an indigent capital state inmate pursuing federal habeas relief "shall be entitled to the appointment of one or more attorneys," entitles a death row inmate to stay the federal habeas proceedings he initiated if he is not competent to assist counsel.

   Decided Jan. 8, 2013 (568 U.S. __). Ninth Circuit/Reversed. Justice Thomas for a 9-0 Court. Decided with Tibbals v. Carter, No. 11-218. A summary of that opinion appears above

8. Kloeckner v. Solis*, No. 11-184 (8th Cir., 639 F.3d 834; cert. granted Jan. 13, 2012; argued on Oct. 2, 2012). The Merit Systems Protection Board is authorized to hear appeals by federal employees regarding certain adverse actions, such as dismissals. If in such an appeal the employee asserts that the challenged action was the result of unlawful discrimination, that claim is referred to as a "mixed case." The Question Presented is: If the Board decides a "mixed case" without determining the merits of the discrimination claim, whether the Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit or a district court has jurisdiction over that claim.

   Decided Dec. 10, 2012 (568 U.S. ___). Eighth Circuit/Reversed. Justice Kagan for a 9-0 Court. The Court held that when the Merit Systems Protection Board

("MSPB") dismisses an employee's claim on procedural grounds, the employee must seek judicial review in federal district court, not the Federal Circuit. The Civil Service Reform Act ("CSRA") permits a federal employee to seek judicial review of MSPB decisions regarding federal personnel actions. The statute provides that judicial review of the MSPB's decision should be sought in the Federal Circuit, or, if the action is a "mixed case" involving claims of discrimination under federal antidiscrimination statutes, in federal district court. 5 U.S.C. § 7703(b)(1)–(2). The court below interpreted the statute to require that mixed cases dismissed on procedural grounds be reviewed in the Federal Circuit. The Court, resolving a circuit split, found the statute straightforward: "cases of discrimination subject to [§ 7702]" shall be filed in district court, and "cases of discrimination subject to [§ 7702]" are mixed cases alleging discrimination. Therefore, the Court held, mixed cases shall be filed in district court, regardless of whether the MSPB's decision was procedural or on the merits. The Court rejected the Government's contrary argument that a procedural ruling is not a "judicially reviewable action" subject to review in the district court. The Government's reading of the statute would have stretched the meaning of "judicially reviewable action" beyond normal legal parlance, causing a strange result: under the Government's view, "to say that an agency action is not 'judicially reviewable' is to say that it is subject to judicial review in the Federal Circuit (even though not in district court)."

9. Arkansas Game & Fish Commission v. United States*, No. 11-597 (Fed. Cir., 637 F.3d 1366; cert. granted Apr. 2, 2012; argued on Oct. 3, 2012). Whether government actions that impose recurring flood invasions must continue permanently to take property within the meaning of the Takings Clause of the Fifth Amendment.

   Decided Dec. 4, 2012 (568 U.S. ____). Federal Circuit/Reversed and remanded. Justice Ginsburg for an 8-0 Court (Kagan, J. did not participate). The Court held that the Government's recurrent flooding of an owner's land may constitute a taking under the Fifth Amendment, even where the flooding is temporary. In prior decisions, the Court had separately held that flooding can constitute a taking, and that a taking need not be permanent to be compensable. The Government argued here, however, that floodings are compensable only where they are permanent, relying on a line from Sanguinetti v. United States, 264 U.S. 146, 150 (1924) ("it is, at least, necessary that the overflow . . . constitute an actual, permanent invasion of the land"). The Court disagreed. It held that this dicta from Sanguinetti was meant to summarize the Court's flooding cases to that point, all of which had involved permanent flooding, rather than to set forth a fixed rule of Takings jurisprudence. The Court dismissed the Government's concern that every passing flood, no matter how brief, would create liability; the Court's cases establish that Takings cases must be decided by weighing the relevant factors in each case. Those relevant factors include the length of the intrusion, its degree, the character of the land at issue, and the owner's reasonable, investment-backed expectations for the land's use. The Court declined to address the Government's other justification for the Federal Circuit's judgment, because that argument was not raised to the court below.

10. United States v. Bormes*, No. 11-192 (Fed. Cir., 626 F.3d 574; cert. granted Jan. 13, 2012; argued on Oct. 2, 2012). Whether the Little Tucker Act, 28 U.S.C. § 1346(a)(2), waives the sovereign immunity of the United States with respect to damages actions for violations of the Fair Credit Reporting Act, 15 U.S.C. § 1681 et seq.

    Decided Nov. 13, 2012 (568 U.S. ____). Federal Circuit/Vacated and remanded. Justice Scalia for a 9-0 Court. The plaintiff, James Bormes, paid a fee to the United States over the Internet and then brought suit against the U.S. for damages under the Fair Credit Reporting Act on grounds that the fee receipt displayed too much information about his credit card. The Government countered that it was immune from lawsuits seeking money damages. The Supreme Court agreed, holding that the Little Tucker Act, 28 U.S.C. § 1346(a)(2), does not waive the Government's sovereign immunity with respect to Fair Credit Reporting Act damages actions. The Court observed that the Little Tucker Act provides the Government's consent to suit for certain damages claims premised on other laws, unless the other laws include their own judicial remedies. The Fair Credit Reporting Act, the Court reasoned, provides a detailed remedial scheme, including monetary relief in certain circumstances. Thus, the Little Tucker Act does not waive sovereign immunity with respect to Fair Credit Reporting Act claims.

Pending Cases

1. Kiobel v. Royal Dutch Petroleum*, No. 10-1491 (2d Cir., 621 F.3d 111; cert. granted Oct. 17, 2011, argued in tandem with Mohamad v. Rajoub, No. 11-88; SG as amicus, supporting Petitioners; argued on Feb. 28, 2012; restored to calendar on Mar. 5, 2012; SG supplemental brief as amicus, supporting Petitioners; argued on Oct. 1, 2012). The Questions Presented are: (1) Whether the issue of corporate civil tort liability under the Alien Tort Statute ("ATS"), 28 U.S.C. § 1350, is a merits question or an issue of subject matter jurisdiction. (2) Whether corporations are immune from tort liability for violations of the law of nations such as torture, extrajudicial executions or genocide or whether they may be sued in the same manner as any other private party defendant under the ATS. (3) Whether and under what circumstances the ATS allows courts to recognize a cause of action for violations of the law of nations occurring within the territory of a sovereign other than the United States.

2. Johnson v. Williams*, No. 11-465 (9th Cir., 646 F.3d 636; cert. granted Jan. 13, 2012, limited to Question 1; argued on Oct. 3, 2012). Whether a habeas petitioner's claim has been "adjudicated on the merits" for purposes of 28 U.S.C. § 2254(d) where the state court denied relief in an explained decision but did not expressly acknowledge a federal-law basis for the claim.

3. Moncrieffe v. Holder*, No. 11-702 (5th Cir., 662 F.3d 387; cert. granted Apr. 2, 2012; argued on Oct. 10, 2012). Whether a conviction under a provision of state law that encompasses, but is not limited to, the distribution of a small amount of marijuana without remuneration constitutes an aggravated felony, notwithstanding that the record of conviction does not establish that the alien was convicted of conduct that would constitute a federal felony.

The Questions Presented are: (1) Whether the Fourth Circuit erred in holding, contrary to every other court heretofore to have considered the issue, that lawyers who obtain, disclose, or use personal information solely to find clients to represent in an incipient lawsuit—as opposed to evidence for use in existing or potential litigation—may seek solace under the litigation exception of the Driver's Privacy Protection Act of 1994 ("DPPA"), 18 U.S.C. §§ 2721-2725. (2) Whether the Fourth Circuit erred in reaching the conclusion (in conflict with prior precedent) that a lawyer who files an action that effectively amounts to a "place holder" lawsuit may thereafter use DPPA-protected personal information to solicit plaintiffs for that action through a direct mail advertising campaign on the grounds that such use is "inextricably intertwined" with "use in litigation."

The Questions Presented are: (1) Whether the Government can be held liable for a taking when it refuses to issue a land-use permit on the sole basis that the permit applicant did not accede to a permit condition that, if applied, would violate the essential nexus and rough proportionality tests set out in Nollan v. California Coastal Commission, 483 U.S. 825 (1987), and Dolan v. City of Tigard, 512 U.S. 374 (1994). Did the Federal Circuit depart from the standard this Court articulated in Grable & Sons Metal Products, Inc. u. Darue Eng'g & Mfg., 545 U.S. 308 (2005), for "arising under" jurisdiction of the federal courts under 28 U.S.C. § 1338, when it held that state law legal malpractice claims against trial lawyers for their handling of underlying patent matters come within the exclusive jurisdiction of the federal courts? Because the Federal Circuit has exclusive jurisdiction over appeals involving patents, are state courts and federal courts strictly following the Federal Circuit's mistaken standard, thereby magnifying its jurisdictional error and sweeping broad swaths of state law claims—which involve no actual patents and have no impact on actual patent rights—into the federal courts?

Whether 28 U.S.C. §§ 1346(b) and 2680(h) waive the sovereign immunity of the United States for the intentional torts of prison guards when they are acting within the scope of their employment but are not exercising authority to "execute searches, to seize evidence, or to make arrests for violations of federal law.

2. Bowman v. Monsanto Co.*, No. 11-796 (Fed. Cir., 657 F.3d 1341; cert. granted Oct. 5, 2012; SG as amicus, supporting Respondents; argument scheduled for Feb. 19, 2013). Patent exhaustion delimits rights of patent holders by eliminating the right to control or prohibit use of the invention after an authorized sale. In this case, the Federal Circuit refused to find exhaustion where a farmer used seeds purchased in an authorized sale for their natural and foreseeable purpose-namely, for planting. The Question Presented is: Whether the Federal Circuit erred by (1) refusing to find patent exhaustion in patented seeds even after an authorized sale and by (2) creating an exception to the doctrine of patent exhaustion for self-replicating technologies?

3. McBurney v. Young*, No. 12-17 (4th Cir., 667 F.3d 454; cert. granted Oct. 5, 2012; argument scheduled for Feb. 20, 2013). 4. PPL Corp. v. Commissioner of Internal Revenue*, No. 12-43 (3d Cir., 665 F.3d 60; cert. granted Oct. 29, 2012; argument scheduled for Feb. 20, 2013). Whether, in determining the creditability of a foreign tax, courts should employ a formalistic approach that looks solely at the form of the foreign tax statute and ignores how the tax actually operates, or should employ a substance-based approach that considers factors such as the practical operation and intended effect of the foreign tax.

5. McQuiggin v. Perkins*, No. 12-126 (6th Cir., 670 F.3d 665; cert. granted Oct. 29, 2012; argument scheduled for Feb. 25, 2013). Whether, under the Antiterrorism and Effective Death Penalty Act of 1996, there is an actual-innocence exception to the requirement that a petitioner show an extraordinary circumstance that "prevented timely filing" of a habeas petition, and if so, whether there is an additional actual-innocence exception to the requirement that a petitioner demonstrate that "he has been pursuing his rights diligently."

6. Trevino v. Thaler*, No. 11-10189 (5th Cir., 449 F. App'x 415; cert. granted Oct. 29, 2012, limited to Question One; argument scheduled for Feb. 25, 2013). In federal habeas proceedings, undersigned counsel raised for the first time a claim under Wiggins v. Smith, 539 U.S. 510 (2003), that trial counsel were ineffective for failing to investigate the extraordinary mitigating evidence in Mr. Trevino's life. The federal proceeding was stayed to allow exhaustion, but the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals dismissed Mr. Trevino's Wiggins claim under state abuse of the writ rules. Thereafter, the federal district court dismissed the claim as procedurally barred, finding no cause for the default. On appeal, Mr. Trevino argued that the Court of Appeals should stay further proceedings until this Court resolved the question then-pending in several cases whether ineffective assistance of state habeas counsel in failing to raise a meritorious claim of ineffective assistance of trial counsel established cause for the default in state habeas proceedings. The Court of Appeals refused to stay Mr. Trevino's appeal for this purpose. Four months later, this Court decided in Martinez v. Ryan, 132 S. Ct. 1309 (March 20, 2012), that ineffective assistance of state habeas counsel in the very circumstance presented by Mr. Trevino's case could establish cause for the default of a claim of ineffective assistance of trial counsel. The Question Presented is whether the Court should grant certiorari, vacate the Court of Appeals opinion, and remand to the Court of Appeals for consideration of Mr. Trevino's argument under Martinez v. Ryan?

Whether the court of appeals erred in (1) creating a new, heightened preemption test under Article I, Section 4, Clause 1 of the U.S. Constitution that is contrary to this Court's authority and conflicts with other circuit court decisions, and (2) holding that under that test the National Voter Registration Act preempts an Arizona law that requests persons who are registering to vote to show evidence that they are eligible to vote.

Under federal regulations, a "handler" of raisins must turn over a percentage of his raisin crop to a federal entity in order to sell the remainder on the open market—often in exchange for no payment or payment below the cost of raisin production. The Questions Presented are: (1) Whether the Ninth Circuit erred in holding, contrary to the decisions of five other circuit courts, that a party may not raise the Takings Clause as a defense to a "direct transfer of funds mandated by the Government," Eastern Enterprises v. Apfel, 524 U.S. 498, 521 (1998) (plurality), but instead must pay the money and then bring a separate, later claim requesting reimbursement of the money under the Tucker Act in the Court of Federal Claims; and (2) Whether the Ninth Circuit erred in holding, contrary to a decision of the Federal Circuit, that it lacked jurisdiction over petitioners' takings defense, even though petitioners, as "handlers" of raisins under the Raisin Marketing Order, are statutorily required under 7 U.S.C. § 608c(15) to exhaust all claims and defenses in administrative proceedings before the United States Department of Agriculture, with exclusive jurisdiction for review in federal district court.

(2) Whether the court of appeals erred in holding that Congress lacks the Article I authority to provide for criminal penalties under 18 U.S.C. § 2250(a)(2)(A) for failing to register as a sex offender, as applied to a person who was convicted of a sex offense under federal law and completed his criminal sentence before SORNA was enacted.

Cases Determined Without Argument

1. Tennant v. Jefferson County Commission*, No. 11-1184 (S.D. W.Va.; reversed and remanded Sept. 25, 2012). Per Curiam. On direct appeal from a three-judge district court, the Court held that West Virginia's 2011 congressional redistricting plan does not violate the "one person, one vote" principle embodied in Article I, § 2 of the United States Constitution. Because West Virginia conceded that it could have adopted a redistricting plan with lower population variations between congressional districts, the only question for the Court was whether West Virginia can demonstrate that the "population deviations in its plan were necessary to achieve some legitimate state objective." Karcher v. Daggett, 462 U.S. 725, 740 (1983). The Court held that West Virginia carried its burden. Unlike other proposed plans, the chosen redistricting plan avoided creating contests between incumbents, did not split political subdivisions, and minimized population shifts between districts. Accordingly, the Court reversed the district court's decision that West Virginia had not carried its burden.

2. Lefemine v. Wideman*, No. 12-168 (4th Cir.; vacated and remanded Nov. 5, 2012). Per curiam. In a lawsuit alleging that the conduct of government officials violates the U.S. Constitution, a plaintiff who obtains a permanent injunction but no money damages is a "prevailing party" for purposes of attorneys' fees under 42 U.S.C. § 1988. The permanent injunction ordered the officials to change their behavior in a manner that directly benefited the plaintiff. Accordingly, the plaintiff was entitled to receive his attorneys' fees unless special circumstances would render an award unjust.

3. Nitro-Lift Technologies, LLC v. Howard*, No. 11-1377 (Okla.; vacated and remanded Nov. 26, 2012). Per curiam. The Court held that the Oklahoma Supreme Court erred in preventing arbitration of a dispute over the scope of non-competition agreements in employment contracts. The employment contract at issue contained a valid arbitration clause requiring arbitration for "[a]ny dispute, difference or unresolved question between Nitro-Lift and the Employee." Nonetheless, the Oklahoma Supreme Court ruled that the arbitration clause and the Federal Arbitration Act, 9 U.S.C. § 1 et seq., did not inhibit its review of the underlying contract's validity, and the noncompetition clauses were void and unenforceable as against Oklahoma's public policy. The Supreme Court vacated the Oklahoma Supreme Court's decision, holding that it was bound by the FAA, which is "the supreme Law of the Land," and by the prior opinions of the U.S. Supreme Court interpreting the FAA as foreclosing "judicial hostility towards arbitration." CVSG Cases In Which The Solicitor General Opposed Certiorari

1. Los Angeles County Flood Control v. Natural Resources*, No. 11-460 (9th Cir., 673 F.3d 880; cert. granted June 25, 2012; limited to Question 2; SG as amicus, supporting Neither Party; argued on Dec. 4, 2012). In South Florida Water Management District v. Miccosukee Tribe of Indians, 541 U.S. 95, 105 (2004), the Supreme Court held that transfer of water within a single body of water cannot constitute a "discharge" for purposes of the Clean Water Act. The question presented is whether when water flows from one portion of a river that is navigable water of the United States into a lower portion of the same river, through a concrete channel or other engineered improvement in the river constructed for flood and stormwater control as part of a municipal separate storm sewer system, there can be a "discharge" from an "outfall" under the Clean Water Act.

   Decided Jan. 8, 2013 (568 U.S. __). Ninth Circuit/Reversed and remanded. Justice Ginsburg for a 9-0 Court (Alito, J., concurring in the judgment only). The Court held that the flow of water from an improved portion of a navigable waterway into an unimproved portion of the same waterway does not qualify as a "discharge of a pollutant" under the Clean Water Act. The district court found that the record was insufficient to warrant a finding that Petitioner's "municipal separate storm sewer systems," concrete channels within the Los Angeles and San Gabriel Rivers, had discharged pollutants into the rivers. The Ninth Circuit reversed, holding that a discharge had occurred when polluted water detected in the improved portion of the waterways flowed downstream into the unimproved portions of the same waterways. In keeping with the Court's holding in South Florida Water Management District v. Miccosukee Tribe, 541 U.S. 95, 109-112 (2004), where it held that the transfer of polluted water between "two parts of the same water body" is not a discharge, the Court reversed. Because of its prior holding in Miccosukee, the Court noted that it was "hardly surprising" that both parties and the United States as amicus curiae agreed that the flow of polluted water from one portion of a river, through a concrete channel, and then into a lower portion of the same river does not constitute a "discharge." In Miccosukee, polluted water was removed from and then returned to the same water body; here, the Court reasoned, polluted water simply flowed "from one portion of the water body to another." Unless the transfer of polluted water is between "meaningfully distinct water bodies," as the Court explained in Miccosukee, it does not qualify as a "discharge" under the Clean Water Act.

2. Ryan v. Gonzales*, No. 10-930 (9th Cir., 623 F.3d 1242; CVSG May 31, 2011; cert. opposed Feb. 9, 2012; cert. granted Mar. 19, 2012; SG as amicus, supporting Petitioners). Whether 18 U.S.C. § 3599(a)(2), which provides that an indigent capital state inmate pursuing federal habeas relief "shall be entitled to the appointment of one or more attorneys," entitles a death row inmate to stay the federal habeas proceedings he initiated if he is not competent to assist counsel.

Decided Jan. 8, 2013 (568 U.S. __). Ninth Circuit/Reversed. Justice Thomas for a 9-0 Court. Decided with Tibbals v. Carter, No. 11-218. The Court held that state prisoners adjudged incompetent have no statutory right to a stay of their federal habeas corpus proceedings. The Ninth Circuit and the Sixth Circuit, citing different federal statutes, had both concluded that death row inmates are entitled to a suspension of their federal habeas proceedings when found incompetent. The Supreme Court reversed both courts. Specifically, the Court held that its prior decision in Rees v. Peyton, 384 U.S. 312 (1966) (per curiam), did not recognize a statutory right to competence in federal habeas proceedings. The Court also held that 18 U.S.C. § 3599, which guarantees a right to federally funded counsel, does not provide a state prisoner with the right to suspend his federal habeas proceedings when he is adjudged incompetent. The Court reasoned that the assertion of such a right lacked any basis in the provision's text and would be difficult to square with the Court's constitutional precedents. The Court went on to note that given the backward-looking, record-based nature of habeas proceedings, counsel can generally provide effective representation to a habeas petitioner regardless of the petitioner's competence. After rejecting 18 U.S.C. § 3599 as a statutory basis for the right to competence in habeas proceedings, the Court also held that 18 U.S.C. § 4241 does not include a right to competence in habeas proceedings because it is inapplicable to habeas proceedings on its face, applying only to federal defendants and to trial proceedings prior to sentencing and at any time after the commencement of probation or supervised release. Finally, the Court held that where competence is questioned and the prisoner's claims could potentially benefit from his or her assistance, a district court should "take into account the likelihood that the petitioner will regain competence in the foreseeable future" and should not issue an indefinite stay that would "merely frustrate[] the State's attempts to defend its presumptively valid judgment."

3. Decker v. Northwest Envtl. Defense Ctr.*, No. 11-338 (9th Cir., 640 F.3d 1063; cert. granted June 25, 2012, case consolidated with Georgia-Pacific West v. Northwest Envtl. Defense Ctr., No. 11-347; SG as amicus, supporting Petitioners; argued on Dec. 3, 2012). The Questions Presented are: (1) Whether the Ninth Circuit erred when, in conflict with other circuits, it held that a citizen may bypass judicial review of a National Pollutant Discharge Elimination System ("NPDES") permitting rule under 33 U.S.C. § 1369, and may instead challenge the validity of the rule in a citizen suit to enforce the Clean Water Act ("CWA"). (2) Whether the Ninth Circuit erred when it held that stormwater from logging roads is industrial stormwater under the CWA and EPA's rules, even though EPA has determined that it is not industrial stormwater.

4. Georgia-Pacific West v. Northwest Environmental Defense Center*, No. 11-347 (9th Cir., 640 F.3d 1063; CVSG Dec. 12, 2011; cert. opposed May 24, 2012; cert. granted June 25, 2012, consolidated with No. 11-338). Since passage of the Clean Water Act, the Environmental Protection Agency has considered runoff of rain from forest roads—whether channeled or not—to fall outside the scope of its National Pollutant Discharge Elimination System ("NPDES") and thus not to require a permit as a point source discharge of pollutants.

Under a rule first promulgated in 1976, EPA consistently has defined as nonpoint source activities forest road construction and maintenance from which natural runoff results. And in regulating stormwater discharges under 1987 amendments to the Act, EPA again expressly excluded runoff from forest roads. In consequence, forest road runoff long has been regulated as a nonpoint source using best management practices, like those imposed by the State of Oregon on the roads at issue here. EPA's consistent interpretation of more than 35 years has survived proposed regulatory revision and legal challenge, and repeatedly has been endorsed by the United States in briefs and agency publications. The Ninth Circuit—in conflict with other circuits, contrary to the position of the United States as amicus, and with no deference to EPA—rejected EPA's longstanding interpretation. Instead, it directed EPA to regulate channeled forest road runoff under a statutory category of stormwater discharges "associated with industrial activity," for which a permit is required. The Question Presented is: Whether the Ninth Circuit should have deferred to EPA's longstanding position that channeled runoff from forest roads does not require a permit, and erred when it mandated that EPA regulate such runoff as industrial stormwater subject to NPDES.

5. Vance v. Ball State University*, No. 11-556 (7th Cir., 646 F.3d 461; CVSG Feb. 21, 2012; cert. opposed May 24, 2012; cert. granted June 25, 2012; SG as amicus, supporting Neither Party; argued on Nov. 26, 2012). In Faragher v. City of Boca Raton, 524 U.S. 775 (1998), and Burlington Industries, Inc. v. Ellerth, 524 U.S. 742 (1998), this Court held that under Title VII, an employer is vicariously liable for severe or pervasive workplace harassment by a supervisor of the victim. If the harasser was the victim's co-employee, however, the employer is not liable absent proof of negligence. In the decision below, the Seventh Circuit held that actionable harassment by a person whom the employer deemed a "supervisor" and who had the authority to direct and oversee the victim's daily work could not give rise to vicarious liability because the harasser did not also have the power to take formal employment actions against her. The Question Presented is whether, as the Second, Fourth, and Ninth Circuits have held, the Faragher and Ellerth "supervisor" liability rule (i) applies to harassment by those whom the employer vests with authority to direct and oversee their victim's daily work, or, as the First, Seventh, and Eighth Circuits have held (ii) is limited to those harassers who have the power to "hire, fire, demote, promote, transfer, or discipline" their victim.

The Questions Presented are: (1) Whether 49 U.S.C. § 14501(c)(1), which provides that "a State [or] political subdivision . . . may not enact or enforce a law, regulation, or other provision having the force and effect of law related to a price, route, or service of any motor carrier . . . with respect to the transportation of property," contains an unexpressed "market participant" exception and permits a municipal governmental entity to take action that conflicts with the express preemption clause, occurs in a market in which the municipal entity does not participate, and is unconnected with any interest in the efficient procurement of services. (3) Whether permitting a municipal governmental entity to bar federally licensed motor carriers from access to a port operates as a partial suspension of the motor carriers' federal registration, in violation of Castle v. Hayes Freight Lines Inc., 348 U.S. 61 (1954).

The Questions Presented are: (1) Whether a court may depart from the plain and ordinary meaning of a term in a patent claim based on language in the patent specification, where the patentee has neither expressly disavowed the plain meaning of the claim term nor expressly defined the term in a way that differs from its plain meaning. (2) Whether claim construction, including underlying factual issues that are integral to claim construction, is a purely legal question subject to de novo review on appeal.

(2) Whether the SLUSA precludes a class action in which the defendant is sued for aiding and abetting fraud, but a non-party, rather than the defendant, made the only alleged misrepresentation in connection with a covered securities transaction.
