Gibson Dunn Adds Fund Finance Lawyer Andrew Hogan in New York

Firm News | September 22, 2026

Gibson Dunn announced today that Andrew (Andy) Hogan has joined the firm's New York office as a partner in its Finance and Investment Funds Practice Groups. Andy represents investment funds, fund sponsors, and lenders in a broad range of complex and bespoke fund-level and fund-adjacent financing transactions, including subscription, net asset value (NAV) and hybrid facilities, structured fund finance transactions, and financings utilizing structured finance and securitization techniques.

Andy's arrival builds on Gibson Dunn's growing fund finance and structured capital platform, following the addition of Duncan McKay as Head of Fund Finance in 2025.

"Andy is an outstanding addition to our busy and rapidly scaling fund finance and structured capital platform," said Duncan. "He has deep experience advising sponsors on their most complex and bespoke fund financings, together with sophisticated structured finance and securitization capabilities. As the market increasingly demands solutions that cut across traditional fund finance and structured finance products, Andy adds significant depth to our ability to structure and execute innovative financings for sponsors throughout the life cycle of their funds and investment platforms."

"I was drawn to Gibson Dunn by its world-class, full-service platform and deep client relationships," said Andy. "Fund finance is evolving rapidly, with traditional product categories increasingly converging with structured finance and securitization. Gibson Dunn's elite and global platform creates a tremendous opportunity to bring those capabilities together and develop sophisticated, innovative financing solutions tailored to our clients' needs."
