Gibson Dunn Adds Of Counsel Christopher Rosina in New York

Firm News | March 28, 2023

---

Gibson, Dunn & Crutcher LLP is pleased to announce that Christopher Rosina has joined the firm's New York office as an of counsel. Rosina serves as a member of the firm's Privacy, Cybersecurity and Data Innovation and Artificial Intelligence and Automated Systems Practice Groups. Before joining Gibson Dunn, Rosina worked as a senior member of Apple's legal team, where he was the principal architect of Apple's global privacy compliance program, including in preparation for GDPR and CCPA, and served as the primary counsel to Apple's Data Protection Officer. In this capacity, Rosina provided strategic counsel across Apple's business units, relating to almost all of Apple's products and services, in addition to managing global regulatory responses and filings. In addition to his role advising Apple's consumer-facing business, Rosina provided extensive guidance to the company's internal teams on matters related to corporate infrastructure and employee privacy. Prior to his work at Apple, Rosina was Global Privacy and Security Counsel at Hewlett Packard Enterprise, where he served as the legal department's principal adviser on privacy and cybersecurity issues and led development of the company's privacy compliance programs. At Gibson Dunn, Rosina advises clients on all aspects of privacy and cybersecurity, including product counseling, compliance, advocacy, policy issues, and regulatory response in a dynamic legal landscape. Rosina graduated from the University of Pennsylvania Law School in 2011. Rosina's arrival further builds on Gibson Dunn's talent magnet effect, as demonstrated by the firm's recent additions from the ranks of key growth industries, including Ron Hauben (formerly Americas Vice Chair and General Counsel at Ernst & Young), Jane Horvath (formerly Apple's Chief Privacy Officer), Kira Idoko (formerly Senior Vice President, Private Funds at Brookfield Asset Management), and David Woodcock (formerly Assistant General Counsel – Corporate at ExxonMobil Corporation).
