Gibson Dunn Advised Catchment Capital on Isolatek Acquisition

Firm News | April 23, 2026

Gibson Dunn advised Catchment Capital, a private equity firm focused on transforming middle market industrial businesses, on its acquisition of Isolatek, a leading manufacturer and supplier of passive fireproofing technologies, from SK Capital.

The Gibson Dunn corporate team was led by partner Alexander Fine and included associates Jonathan Abrams, Michael Naclerio, and Ethan Anderson. Partner Matt Donnelly and associate Elizabeth Johnson advised tax aspects; partner Michael Collins advised on benefits; partner Dean Masuda and associates Catie Sakurai and Nicole Kim advised on financing; partner Meghan Hungate and associate Andrew Hartman advised on IP aspects; partner Michael Murphy advised on environmental aspects; partner Josh Lipton and associate Alex Merritt advised antitrust aspects; and partner Christopher Timura advised on international trade aspects.

Related People

Alexander D. Fine

Jonathan Abrams

Michael Naclerio

Ethan Anderson

Michael Collins

Dean Masuda

Catie Sakurai

Nicole S. Kim

Meghan M. Hungate

Andrew Hartman

Michael K. Murphy

Joshua Lipton

Alexander H. Merritt

Christopher T. Timura

Related Capabilities

Mergers and Acquisitions

Private Equity