Gibson Dunn Enhances Infrastructure Platform with Public Law Partner Dorothée Griveaux in Paris

Firm News | October 2, 2025

Gibson Dunn is pleased to announce that Dorothée Griveaux is joining the firm's Paris office as a public law partner, enhancing the firm's capabilities in its market-leading Infrastructure Group. Dorothée will advise Gibson Dunn's clients on public law and regulatory matters. She arrives accompanied by an associate, Marceau Debaille.

Darko Adamovic, Partner and Head of the Infrastructure Group in Paris, said: "We are delighted to welcome Dorothée and Marceau to the firm. Dorothée brings expertise in public law and regulatory matters on major infrastructure projects, and this additional capability will be a significant asset to our clients across Europe and beyond."

"Dorothée and Marceau are outstanding additions to our Paris team. As we continue to expand our infrastructure practice in France, their experience—particularly on major transport, energy, and telecommunications projects—bolsters our ability to serve clients on the most complex infrastructure mandates across the globe," said Amanda Bevan-de Bernède, Partner in Charge of the Paris office.
Gibson Dunn's Infrastructure Group covers the range of practice capabilities including mergers and acquisitions, private equity and other investments, investment funds, project development and financing (including public-private partnerships (PPPs)), restructuring, privatization, joint ventures, capital market issuances, other lending transactions, tax equity investments, concessions and governmental matters, legislative advice, commercial arrangements (including industry-specific contracts), regulatory issues, disputes, and related litigation matters.

The firm's Infrastructure clients include leading sponsors, developers, contractors, governments and government agencies, commercial and investment banks, institutional lenders, pension funds, multilateral organizations, export credit agencies, equipment suppliers, and other industry participants. And the team works seamlessly across our global offices in North America, Europe, the Middle East, and Asia.

About Dorothée Griveaux

Dorothée's experience includes advising on greenfield and brownfield projects involving all types of assets in the energy and infrastructure sectors; her practice is particularly focused on complex public contracts (concessions, partnership agreements) for public facilities or infrastructure projects in the transport, energy, and telecommunications sectors. She regularly assists public entities, sponsors (investment funds or industrial companies) and lenders in large-scale projects.

She recently worked on the renewal of the Stade de France concession, as well as on several cases relating to the opening of rail transport to competition and the financing of rolling stock. Dorothée also handles litigation, particularly in regulated sectors.
