

Julia Lapitskaya Discusses Safe Disclosure of Security Practices with Agenda

In the Media | August 15, 2025

Partner Julia Lapitskaya spoke to Agenda about the challenges companies face in balancing the need to disclose security practices to satisfy investors with the responsibility to protect their employees.

Julia emphasized that while disclosures must be comprehensive, companies should avoid presenting security measures in ways that could compromise their effectiveness. “Companies who do talk about being committed to the safety, health and well-being of their employees are talking [about]... protecting their team members everywhere they operate and providing them with specific crisis management security and safety trainings.”
