GIBSON DUNN

Katie Townsend and Raleigh Cavero Author ABA Communications Lawyer Article on First Amendment Rights for News Organizations

Article | September 8, 2026

Partner Katie Townsend and associate Raleigh Cavero authored the ABA Communications Lawyer's (membership required) "Affirmative Litigation: The New First Choice for News Organizations Targeted with Government Investigative Demands," describing how a recent U.S. Supreme Court ruling provides journalists and news organizations with "a clear path to promptly challenge non-self-executing subpoenas and other investigative demands issued by government entities and officials that chill the exercise of First Amendment rights."

"The issuance of retaliatory and bad-faith government subpoenas and other investigative demands targeting the press inflicts unique and substantial First Amendment harms," they write.

Related Capabilities

First Amendment and Free Expression

Related People

Katie Townsend

Raleigh Cavero

© 2026 Gibson, Dunn & Crutcher LLP. All rights reserved. For contact and other information, please visit us at www.gibsondunn.com. | www.gibsondunn.com