Law360 [PDF] has written about partners Josh Krevitt and Stuart Rosenberg securing the dismissal of a lawsuit against Uniswap Labs, which was accused of infringing patents for smart contract technology used in decentralized exchanges. A federal judge found the patent claims didn't pass the U.S. Supreme Court's Alice test.

In a statement to Law360, Josh and Stuart said that the decision was important not just for the firm "but also more broadly for the continued development and use of decentralized cryptocurrency exchanges."
