Ryan Azad is a litigation associate in the San Francisco office of Gibson Dunn and a member of the Appellate and Constitutional Law Practice Group. His practice focuses on appellate matters in state and federal courts.

Ryan has briefed cases in courts around the country and has argued before the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit and the California Court of Appeal. He was recognized in the Los Angeles Daily Journal's annual "Top Verdicts" feature for winning a top appellate reversal in 2024. Ryan was also honored with the 2024 Frank Wheat Memorial Award for his pro bono work briefing and arguing appeals on behalf of indigent clients who were denied their opportunity to fair proceedings in the trial court. In one of those cases, Ryan persuaded the Ninth Circuit to reverse an immigration judge's denial of his client's application for relief from removal and later persuaded the government to dismiss removal proceedings altogether, allowing his client to obtain lawful permanent resident status under the Cuban Adjustment Act.

Before joining the firm, Ryan clerked for Justice Mariano-Florentino Cuéllar of the Supreme Court of California, Judge Milan D. Smith, Jr. of the United States Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit, and Judge Samuel H. Mays, Jr. of the United States District Court for the Western District of Tennessee.

- Davis v. Colorado (U.S. Supreme Court): Represented National Association of Criminal Defense Lawyers in support of certiorari petition regarding whether, once counsel has been appointed for an indigent defendant, the Sixth Amendment guarantees an indigent defendant the same right to continued representation by that counsel as is enjoyed by affluent defendants.
