Greg Boden is a litigation associate in the Los Angeles office of Gibson, Dunn & Crutcher. He is a member of the firm's Litigation and White Collar Defense and Investigations Practice Groups.

Greg handles a broad range of cases at all stages of civil litigation, including securities fraud, consumer fraud, trade secrets, breach of fiduciary duty, insurance bad faith, and qui tam litigation. He has obtained favorable results in three trials. Greg also has experience in internal corporate investigations, government investigations, and enforcement actions. He has represented an international firm in a Special Counsel investigation; successfully obtained dismissal of criminal charges for an individual charged with insider trading; negotiated a plea agreement for a Fortune 500 company; handled several investigations related to the FCPA, accounting fraud, and insider trading; responded to SEC and DOJ subpoenas; prepared clients for Congressional and SEC testimony, and conducted internal investigations.

He has been recognized by Best Lawyers: Ones to Watch® in America for Litigation-Securities (2024-2026).

Greg co-authored an article on the Fifth Amendment in Civil Practice, published by Law360.

He earned his Juris Doctor from Pepperdine University School of Law, where he graduated magna cum laude and was a member of the Pepperdine Law Review and Order of the Coif. During law school, Greg externed for Chief Judge Alex Kozinski on the United States Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit. He also served as a research assistant to Donald Childress III, analyzing international litigation and the extraterritorial application of U.S. law. Prior to law school, Greg served as an officer in the United States Navy, where he served as the assistant to the Assistant Director of the Officer Department at Naval Nuclear Power Training Command. He completed Naval Nuclear Power School, oversaw officers awaiting training, and analyzed officer success and attrition at Nuclear Power School. Greg received his Bachelor of Arts degree in Economics with a minor in Public Policy from Stanford University in 2009.

Greg is a member of the State Bar of California and is admitted to practice law before the United States District Court for the Central District of California, the Northern District of California, and the Southern District of California.
