Stella Cernak is an associate in the New York office of Gibson, Dunn & Crutcher. Stella is a member of the firm's Litigation Department and White Collar Defense and Investigations and Trials Practice Groups.

Stella's practice focuses primarily on white collar defense, internal investigations, and complex commercial litigation. Stella has represented a range of clients—including Fortune 500 technology companies and clients in the real estate and banking/finance industries—in numerous federal and New York State cases, administrative proceedings, and federal and state regulatory investigations.

Stella has experience managing teams and advising clients in connection with complex, high-stakes legal matters, including investigations and enforcement actions brought by the SEC and the Department of Justice and high-profile federal lawsuits. Stella has significant discovery experience and has worked extensively with expert and fact witnesses. Stella has also played a key role on a number of trial teams.

Representative Engagements Include:

- Representing S&P Global in purported federal class action alleging unfair competition and violation of federal antitrust laws pertaining to the use of CUSIP identifiers.
- Represented Amazon.com in multi-site ergonomic safety investigation brought by the Occupational Safety and Health Administration and the Department of Justice.
- Represented major Fortune 500 technology company in a putative federal class action lawsuit and related regulatory investigations alleging violations of federal and state laws in connection with the use of data analytics technologies.
- Represented multinational bank in Department of Justice and state regulatory investigations relating to alleged violations of the Department of Treasury's Office of Foreign Assets Control sanctions laws, which were resolved without enforcement action.
- Secured jury verdict for Fortune 250 company in connection with federal trial related to an alleged "Ponzi" scheme.
- Successfully represented Lynn Tilton and her company Patriarch Partners at trial in the largest individual administrative enforcement action ever brought by the SEC.
- Represented one of the world's largest oil companies in its successful defense against an attempted confirmation of an $18 billion sham foreign arbitration award in federal court.

Stella maintains an active pro bono practice. Stella was a member of the Gibson Dunn team that drafted an amicus brief for constitutional law scholars in the U.S. Supreme Court
