Katie Cheung is an associate in Hong Kong and a member of the Antitrust and Competition Practice Group. Katie advises on a broad spectrum of competition law and regulatory matters, including antitrust litigation, market investigations and studies, regulatory compliance, merger control, foreign direct investment and national security review issues. Her experience spans various sectors, including technology, financial services, pharmaceuticals, petrochemicals, hospitality and shipping.

In particular, Katie has extensive experience working with clients in the digital and technology industry. Prior to joining Gibson Dunn, she was a competition associate at a magic circle firm, where she worked on a wide range of matters in the digital space, and was seconded to the competition team of a multinational technology company for eight months.

Her recent experience includes advising:*

- A leading technology platform in various lawsuits in China against alleged abuse of dominance and consumer law claims
- A multinational technology company in the market investigations and inquiries conducted by competition regulators in various jurisdictions, including Japan, Taiwan, Australia, India, and the UK, concerning issues of abuse of dominance and data privacy
- An international online travel agent in the investigation concerning parity clauses by the Hong Kong Competition Commission
- A local hotel operator in the investigation concerning a price-fixing cartel by the Hong Kong Competition Commission, and the subsequent commitment and settlement process
- VMWare's acquisition by Broadcom
- Vitol's acquisition of Noble Resources
- Alcon's proposed acquisition of STAAR Surgical Company
- A leading pharmaceutical company in the acquisition of an international animal health business
- An international online travel agent in the acquisition of another global online travel platform
- The local shipping industry in the application for a block exemption order from the Hong Kong Competition Commission
