Patrick W. Dennis is a partner in the Los Angeles office of Gibson, Dunn & Crutcher. He is a member of the Environmental Practice Group. Pat has extensive experience representing clients in general manufacturing, energy, banking, aerospace, real estate, construction, electronics, oil and gas, cement making, and lead recycling in a wide range of environmental matters. He has substantial experience in the following areas:

- Toxic Tort Litigation
- CERCLA Cost Recovery Litigation
- Defense of Environmental Enforcement Actions by Public & Private Parties
- Complex or Large Transactions with Environmental Issues
- Environmental Laws and Regulations Counseling

Pat is consistently named among the nation's leading environmental law attorneys. Lawdragon includes him in its recent Green 500: Leaders in Environmental Law guide, the sixth consecutive edition of the guide in which he is recognized. Who's Who Legal recognizes Pat in its 2024 Thought Leaders: USA guide, which features lawyers with "vast expertise and experience advising on some of the world's most significant and cutting-edge legal matters," and the "ability to innovate, inspire, and go above and beyond to deliver for their clients." He is also recommended for outstanding work in environmental law in Who's Who Legal's Environment & Climate Change guide. Since 2020, Pat has been included by Legal 500 US as a member of the "Hall of Fame" for Environmental Litigation, most recently being honored in 2024. In 2019, and all years prior since 2009, he was nationally ranked as one of just ten "Leading Lawyers" in Environmental Litigation by Legal 500US. For the past 23 years Pat has been ranked by Chambers USA, often in the Band One category, and was named a 2026 "Senior Statesperson" for California Environmental Law. He has also been selected by his peers for inclusion in The Best Lawyers in America© for Environmental Law and Environmental Litigation. In 2017, he was listed in Expert Guide's Energy and Environment guide as a leading practitioner in Environmental Law. From 2012 to 2014, Best Lawyers named him Los Angeles Litigation – Environmental "Lawyer of the Year." Pat received the 2016 CLAY (California Lawyer Attorney of the Year) award in the Real Estate and Development category for his role in the redevelopment of the Hollywood Park racetrack into a world class football stadium to house the Los Angeles Rams for their return to Los Angeles.

In 2009, Pat was elected to the exclusive American College of Environmental Lawyers by his peers. He was also a Chair and founding member of the Los Angeles County Bar Association Environmental Law Section. Between 2017-2019, Pat was the Chair of the Board of Trustees for the California Science Center Foundation.

Among other successful appellate arguments, Pat represented (1) the Atlantic Richfield Company in the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeal decision reported at Wilshire Westwood
