Palo Alto

Justin du Rivage is an associate in the Palo Alto office of Gibson Dunn and a member of the firm's Litigation Department. His practice focuses on international trade and national security matters, including U.S. economic sanctions, the Export Administration Regulations (EAR), and the International Traffic in Arms Regulations (ITAR).

Justin advises companies in the technology, financial services, and defense sectors on U.S. sanctions and export controls, including matters involving artificial intelligence and other emerging technologies. His experience includes counseling clients on regulatory compliance and risk assessment, the design and enhancement of compliance programs, and licensing strategy. He also represents clients in connection with voluntary and directed disclosures as well as government investigations and enforcement matters.

Prior to joining Gibson Dunn, Justin worked on behalf of corporate compliance monitors and advised financial institutions in EMEA and Asia on international sanctions compliance.

Justin received his Juris Doctor from Harvard Law School in 2023, where he served as Senior Executive Editor of the Harvard International Law Journal. He holds a Ph.D. in American history from Yale University. Justin is admitted to practice law in the State of California.
