Jamal Lama is an M&A partner in the New York office of Gibson Dunn.

Jamal advises companies, private equity firms and other investors on domestic and cross-border transactions, with a particular focus on energy and infrastructure. His practice spans public and private mergers and acquisitions, continuation vehicles, joint ventures, preferred equity financings and other strategic transactions. He also advises companies and their sponsors on corporate governance matters throughout the investment lifecycle.

Before joining Gibson Dunn, Jamal served as in-house counsel at Ares Management, advising its Infrastructure Opportunities, Infrastructure Debt and Alternative Credit businesses on complex investments and strategic transactions.

Jamal's experience includes digital infrastructure, including fiber networks, towers and data centers; renewable and conventional power generation; midstream oil and gas; wastewater treatment; renewable natural gas; equipment leasing and aerospace and defense.

Jamal is admitted to practice in the State of New York.
