Houston

Lloyd S. Marshall is an associate in Gibson Dunn's Houston office. He practices in the Firm's Litigation Department and has advised and represented clients in state and federal proceedings in a wide range of subject matters, including technology, energy, and white collar defense.

Recent Representative Matters

- Trial counsel for Mesquite Energy, Inc. in the Texas Business Court's second-ever trial.
- Counsel for wind farm operator Enel Green Power in a suit brought in the Northern District of Oklahoma by the U.S. government and the Osage Nation. Hired on the eve of a damages trial after an adverse liability ruling in a case chronicled by the Wall Street Journal, the Gibson Dunn team convinced the court to strike the plaintiffs' main expert as unreliable and award less than 1% of the damages sought. Lloyd also represents Enel Green Power in related appellate proceedings before the Tenth Circuit.
- Counsel for Cassava Sciences, Inc. in securities litigation in the Western District of Texas related to alleged misrepresentations in connection with Phase 3 clinical trials. Lloyd also represents Cassava in related appellate proceedings before the Fifth Circuit.
- Trial counsel for a private equity firm in an arbitration win involving the termination of a management company.

Prior to joining Gibson Dunn, Lloyd was an associate in the San Francisco office of another leading law firm, where his practice focused on complex commercial litigation and government investigations. From 2018 to 2019, he served as a law clerk to Judge Paul V. Niemeyer of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Fourth Circuit.?

Lloyd earned his J.D. from Stanford Law School, where he was an Articles Editor of the Stanford Law Review. He also participated in the Stanford Supreme Court Litigation Clinic and the Stanford Religious Liberty Clinic. Before entering law school, Lloyd served as a Teach For America corps member, teaching 8th-grade math and coaching football in Canton, Mississippi. He graduated summa cum laude from Texas A&M University with a B.B.A. in Finance.

Lloyd is admitted to practice law in Texas and New York.
