

Simon Moskovitz

Associate Attorney

smoskovitz@gibsondunn.com

T: +1 202.777.9532

Washington, D.C.

Simon is an energy regulatory associate whose practice focuses on advising and representing clients in the electricity, natural gas, and renewable energy industries.

He represents independent power producers, public utilities, transmission companies, and oil and gas companies in connection with a variety of regulatory, transactional, administrative, and advisory contexts including energy utility mergers and acquisitions, project development, negotiating transaction agreements, obtaining federal and state regulatory approvals in connection with project development, PURPA mandatory buys, and FERC settlement procedures.

He received his Juris Doctor cum laude and LL.M in Taxation with distinction from the Georgetown University Law Center. He was selected as the student commencement speaker, served as a member of the Georgetown Environmental Law Review, and received the highest grade in coursework related to the taxation of energy markets. Simon earned his Bachelor of Arts in English from the University of Florida where he was a member of Florida Blue Key.

He was as a judicial intern to the Honorable Helene White Levin of the Sixth Circuit Court of Appeals.

He is admitted to practice law in the District of Columbia, Maryland, and Florida.

Capabilities

Energy Regulation and Litigation
Energy and Infrastructure
Oil and Gas
Power and Renewables

Credentials

Education

Georgetown University - 2022 Master of Laws (LL.M.)
Georgetown University - 2021 Juris Doctor
University of Florida - 2016 Bachelor of Arts

Admissions

District of Columbia Bar