Ksenija Radonji? is a Senior Associate in the London office of Gibson, Dunn & Crutcher and a member of the Dispute Resolution Group.

Ksenija's practice covers a wide range of disputes, including transnational litigation, class actions, contentious antitrust matters, and regulatory investigations.

She focuses particularly on advising global technology clients on complex contentious matters and regulatory engagement. This includes coordinating multi-jurisdictional strategies at multiple levels of appeal, proceedings before the European Court of Justice, certification challenges, jurisdictional and applicable law challenges and motions to dismiss.

In addition, Ksenija has a strong background in international trade as well as financial crime matters. Prior to joining Gibson Dunn, she worked for international law firms in the UK and Europe, and at the European Commission in Brussels, gaining significant experience in commercial cross-border disputes tried before the European Court of Justice, corporate crime, international sanctions and trade.

Most recently, she was an associate at a large global law firm in the Trade, Regulatory and Disputes team in London. Her experience there focused on a broad spectrum of compliance issues, including financial and trade sanctions, anti-corruption and anti-money laundering regulation. She has also been on client secondment to a major investment bank.

Beyond her client work, her pro bono practice focuses on human rights matters, and her pro bono clients include Clooney Foundation for Justice, Human Dignity Trust, Domestic Abuse Response Alliance and Legal Services New York City. Ksenija also acted for a number of pro bono clients providing comprehensive sanctions advice, from engaging with regulators and making licence applications to investigations and contentious advice.

Ksenija is fluent in English, Serbian, German and Portuguese, and has worked on matters in all four languages.
