Jessica Rollinson is an associate in the Energy Regulation and Litigation practice in the Washington, D.C. office of Gibson, Dunn & Crutcher.

Her practice focuses on energy-related regulatory, transactional, and litigation matters before the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission (FERC) and the Department of Energy (DOE), as well as matters relating to state utility commissions, regional transmission organizations (RTOs), and independent system operators (ISOs). Jessica advises clients regarding the Federal Power Act, the Natural Gas Act, the Interstate Commerce Act and related federal and state statutes. She has experience assisting clients with compliance filings, waiver requests, petitions for rehearing, and answers to complaints before FERC. She also has experience counseling clients on energy transactions, drafting DOE grant applications, and representing energy industry clients in investigations brought by FERC's Office of Enforcement and in matters facing the Department of Justice.

She received her J.D. from the University of Virginia School of Law and her B.S. from Texas A&M University.

She is admitted to practice law in the District of Columbia and Maryland.
