Sanford W. Stark is a partner in the Washington D.C. office of Gibson Dunn and the global Chair of the firm's Tax Controversy and Litigation Practice Group.

Sanford counsels on a wide range of complex domestic and international tax issues, including a significant emphasis on transfer pricing. He has served as counsel in a number of the largest tax controversy and litigation matters in recent years. He advises clients in various industries and on all aspects of the tax controversy process, including pre-audit, audit, administrative appeals, Advance Pricing Agreements, and Competent Authority proceedings. Sanford litigates tax disputes in federal trial and appellate courts and State courts, and his transfer pricing experience includes planning and internal restructurings in addition to controversy and litigation.

Sanford is consistently named one of the nation's leading Tax Controversy lawyers as recognized in Chambers USA (both Nationwide Tax Controversy and District of Columbia Tax), The Legal 500 US, The Best Lawyers in America, Lawdragon 500 Leading Global Tax Lawyers, the World Tax Experts Guide, the Tax Controversy Leaders Guide, ITR World Tax (Highly Regarded in both Tax Controversy and World Transfer Pricing), Who's Who Legal (recognized as a Thought Leader), and the Guide to World's Leading Transfer Pricing Advisers, among other publications. Clients describe him as "a brilliant tax attorney," "exceptionally skilled," "amazing to work with," "extremely knowledgeable, responsive and engaging," "solution-oriented and creative," and a "great practitioner whom peers and clients all trust and respect." He "receives resounding acclaim for his work on large tax controversy matters," is a "great team leader with a great courtroom presence," and clients find that he possesses "strong business and legal insights," is "always on top of client service," and "takes the time to understand us and you really feel he is part of your team. He always does what is right for the client."
