Lucas Townsend is a litigation partner in the Washington, D.C. office, and a member of the firm's Appellate and Constitutional Law, Administrative Law, and Class Actions Practice Groups.

Lucas focuses his practice on appellate, administrative law, labor and employment, and complex litigation matters.

He regularly litigates constitutional and statutory issues in the Supreme Court of the United States and courts of appeals around the country; represents clients in challenging and defending regulatory action by administrative agencies under the Administrative Procedure Act; and defends clients in high-stakes commercial disputes.

Lucas's extensive experience includes representing an online retailer in litigation matters concerning COVID-19 safety, arbitration, and employment issues; overturning a major FTC rule on judicial review; representing educational institutions in litigation involving the U.S. Department of Education; representing the holder of a $1.2 billion judgment against the Republic of Venezuela in proceedings before the Supreme Court, D.C. Circuit, Third Circuit, and District of Delaware; representing a bondholder and a bond insurer before the Supreme Court in constitutional litigation arising from Puerto Rico's bankruptcy; drafting successful briefing in significant patent appeals; and representing a national hospital network in litigation resulting in a $60 million reduction in a jury's punitive damages award.

Lucas's representative matters include:
