Washington, D.C.

Alyse Ullery is an associate in the Washington, D.C. office of Gibson, Dunn & Crutcher. She practices in the Firm's Litigation Department, focusing on white collar criminal defense, internal investigations, False Claims Act litigation, and corporate compliance.

Her experience includes representing both corporate and individual clients in government investigations involving the Department of Justice, the Department of Health and Human Services, and other regulatory and enforcement agencies. Alyse has helped defend clients against a wide range of allegations, including potential violations of the U.S. Foreign Corrupt Practices Act, the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act, and both federal and state False Claims Act statutes. Alyse also regularly counsels clients on the structure and effectiveness of their anti-corruption compliance programs, in addition to a variety of health care fraud and abuse compliance matters.

Alyse received her law degree magna cum laude from the Georgetown University Law Center in 2020. During law school, she was a Managing Editor for the American Criminal Law Review's Annual Survey of White Collar Crime. Prior to law school, Alyse worked as a Senior Policy Advisor to a state senator in Texas, where she specialized in criminal justice, health and human services, and veterans' affairs policy. Alyse graduated with Highest Honors from the University of Texas in 2015, where she earned a B.A. in Liberal Arts Honors Government and a B.A. in Theater & Dance.

Alyse is admitted to practice in the District of Columbia and the United States Court of Appeals for the D.C. Circuit.
