Interviewed by Law.com about the uncertainty surrounding transgender rights in the workplace now that portions of the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission's anti-harassment guidance have been struck down by a Texas judge, Washington, D.C. partner Jason Schwartz noted that the real difficulty for employers is that "there is no clear statement of what the law is. I don't think there will be until these issues percolate all the way up to the Supreme Court."

Jason is Co-Chair of our Labor & Employment Practice Group.
