HIALSA Arbitration Review

Partner Rahim Moloo's article "Rules for the Rogue: Reviving the International Rule of Law" was published in the latest edition of the HIALSA Arbitration Review [PDF], a publication of the Harvard International Arbitration Law Students Association. Adapted from Rahim's keynote speech at this year's Harvard International Arbitration Conference, the article explores what a perceived shift from the rule of law to the use of economic coercion or military force means for the future of international dispute resolution.
