Partner Rahul Vashi was quoted by Bloomberg (subscription required) in its article “Oil & Gas Dealmaking Heats Up With $20 Billion of Assets in Play.” The article notes that the rising price of crude resulting from the Iran War has led U.S. private equity firms to shop more than a half-dozen closely held oil and gas companies worth about $20 billion.

“It’s not a rush to the exit, but it’s a market opportunity compared to the last few years,” Rahul said. “This is the market private equity firms have been waiting for.”
