

Robbie Sinclair Interviewed on Counsel Without Borders Podcast

In the Media | May 14, 2026

Counsel Without Borders

"The only firm I'd move to was Gibson Dunn ... the confidence and positive culture seeps through the firm," says new partner Robbie Sinclair in an interview with the International Employment Lawyer podcast Counsel Without Borders.

Robbie discusses his career and what drew him to employment law, as well as the potential impact for employers of the Employment Rights Act in England & Wales, discrimination, unfair dismissal claims, and how the role of employment lawyers has become more holistic in terms of advising clients, going beyond the black letter of the law.

On the topic of the backlog in the Employment Tribunal in England & Wales, Robbie says: "The Employment Tribunal doesn't work anymore ... Cases are being listed for 2030."

Listen to the episode on Spotify.

Related Capabilities

Labor and Employment

Related People

Robbie Sinclair