

Robert Hur to Lead State of Maryland Workgroup to Address Rise in Hate Crimes Against Asian-Americans

Accolades | April 9, 2021

Maryland Governor Larry Hogan named Washington, D.C. partner Robert Hur chair of the state's workgroup charged with developing strategies and recommendations to address the rise in violence and discrimination targeting the Asian-American community. The workgroup was announced on April 9, 2021.

Robert Hur brings decades of experience in government and in private practice, including service in senior leadership positions with the U.S. Department of Justice, to guide companies and individuals facing white-collar criminal matters, regulatory proceedings and enforcement actions, internal investigations, and related civil litigation.
