

Webcast: Sanctions and Export Controls: Key Regulatory and Enforcement Trends

Webcasts | October 17, 2024

Policymakers in Washington and other allied capitals have continued to push the limits of economic statecraft by imposing new sanctions and export controls on major economies such as Russia and China, and aggressively enforcing existing measures. A recent surge of collaboration among sister agencies and partner countries has also sharply increased the compliance burden on multinational firms. To help make sense of this fast-shifting landscape, attorneys from Gibson Dunn explain how U.S. sanctions and export controls work, discuss notable new trade restrictions and recent record-setting enforcement activity, and share best practices in multi-agency and multi-jurisdictional investigations and defense.

PANELISTS:

Adam M. Smith is a partner in the Washington, D.C. office of Gibson, Dunn & Crutcher and serves as co-chair of the firm's International Trade Practice Group. He is an experienced international lawyer with a focus on international trade compliance and white collar investigations, including federal and state economic sanctions enforcement, CFIUS, the Foreign Corrupt Practices Act, embargoes, and export and import controls.

Clients benefit from Adam's experience in the Obama Administration, where he was Senior Advisor to the Director of the U.S. Treasury Department's Office of Foreign Assets Control (OFAC) and Director for Multilateral Affairs on the National Security Council. At OFAC, he was instrumental in shaping and enforcing sanctions policies, briefing Congressional and private sector leaders, conducting extensive international outreach, and negotiating complex agreements. On the National Security Council, he advised the President on international sanctions, coordinated inter-agency efforts, and developed strategies to counter corruption and promote asset recovery. Adam is admitted to practice in District of Columbia and the State of Maryland.

Christopher T. Timura is a partner in the Washington D.C. office of Gibson, Dunn & Crutcher LLP and a member of the firm's International Trade, White Collar Defense and Investigations, and ESG Practice Groups. Chris helps clients solve problems that arise at the intersection of U.S. national security, foreign policy, and international trade regulation. Chris advises clients on compliance with U.S. export controls (ITAR and EAR), import controls, and economic sanctions, and advocates for clients before the departments of State (DDTC), Treasury (OFAC and CFIUS), Commerce (BIS), Homeland Security (Customs & Border Protection), and Justice in civil and criminal enforcement actions, UFLPA and other forced labor-related detentions, and investment reviews. His clients span sectors and range from start-ups to Global 500 companies. He is regularly ranked in Chambers Global and U.S.A. guides for his work and is a regular speaker and writer on the policy drivers, trends, and impacts of evolving international trade policy and regulation. Chris is admitted to practice in the District of Columbia.

Scott Toussaint is a senior associate in the Washington, D.C. office of Gibson, Dunn & Crutcher and a member of the firm's International Trade Practice Group. His practice focuses on compliance with U.S. laws governing international business transactions, including economic sanctions, export controls, and foreign investment in the United States. He advises clients on matters before the U.S. Department of the Treasury's Office of Foreign Assets Control (OFAC), the Committee on Foreign Investment in the United States (CFIUS), and other regulatory and enforcement agencies. Scott has extensive experience counseling U.S. and foreign companies on compliance with OFAC sanctions, obtaining licenses and authorizations, developing corporate compliance programs, and assessing the national security implications of proposed mergers and acquisitions. Scott is admitted to practice in the State of California and the District of Columbia.

Anna Searcey is a litigation associate in the Washington, D.C. office of Gibson, Dunn & Crutcher and a member of both the International Trade, and White Collar Defense and Investigations practice groups. Her experience includes conducting internal investigations for multinational corporate clients, representing corporate and individual clients in government investigations involving the Department of Justice and other regulatory and enforcement agencies, and advising clients regarding the development of their compliance and ethics programs. She also advises clients on U.S. economic sanctions and export controls, including conducting company-wide risk assessments, strengthening trade compliance programs, and developing restricted-party screening protocols. Anna is admitted to practice in the District of Columbia and Virginia. She is also admitted to practice before the United States District Court for the District of Maryland and the United States Court of Appeals for the Fourth Circuit.
