- 1.2 The United Kingdom's Modern Slavery Act 2015 (the "Modern Slavery Act") focuses on the prevention and prosecution of all forms of modern slavery, including human trafficking and forced or compulsory labour. The Modern Slavery Act requires certain businesses to publish a statement regarding the steps that they have taken during the preceding financial year to ensure that modern slavery is not taking place in any part of their business or supply chain.

2. OUR COMMITMENT TO HUMAN RIGHTS

- 2.1 Gibson Dunn is opposed to all forms of human rights abuse, including but not limited to human trafficking, slavery, servitude and forced or compulsory labour. We are committed to taking steps to prevent these acts from occurring within our business and supply chain.
- 2.2 The Firm has taken a number of initiatives as part of its commitment to sustainability. It has partnered with trusted professional networks such as the Legal Sustainability Network and the Legal Sustainability Alliance, a prominent network of the UK's leading law firms working together to improve the environmental sustainability of their business. We have participated in the ALISS (All Legal Industry Sustainability Standard) Assessment since 2022. We currently hold the Bronze Award for our 2024 submission, and are in the process of preparing our 2025 submission. Over 80% of Gibson Dunn offices have LEED (Leadership in Energy and Environmental Design) certification, the world's most widely used green building rating system.
- 2.3 In addition to the Firm's work within its own business and supply chain, Gibson Dunn attorneys regularly participate in high-profile pro bono causes promoting individual rights (including matters before the United States Supreme Court). Further information on the Firm's pro bono work, including our annual pro bono report, is available here. In 2025, Gibson Dunn devoted more than 240,000 hours to numerous pro bono efforts around the world, averaging 106 pro bono hours per attorney worldwide. - 2.4 We also seek to support our clients with their own human rights commitments. Gibson Dunn's Environmental, Social and Governance ("ESG") Practice advises clients on ESG risks, litigation and reporting, with attorneys from across the Firm's offices.

3. RISK ASSESSMENT

- 3.1 Over the past financial year, leaders of Gibson Dunn's London office and Firm attorneys with relevant expertise have continued to evaluate and monitor the risks of slavery and human trafficking taking place in the Firm's business and supply chain. Given that the Firm is a professional services business and that its supply chains are generally comprised of office space/equipment and technology, facilities, transportation, recruitment and financial services, we believe that those risks are relatively low.
- 3.2 Nonetheless, in recognition of the importance of these issues, and as part of the Firm's own sustainability commitments, work is ongoing to evaluate the Firm's supply chain, taking into account diversity and sustainability considerations. The Firm continues to engage a sustainability consulting firm to support its greenhouse gas accounting CDP reporting, and related sustainability initiatives. In addition, the Firm has maintained a relationship with EcoVadis since 2021 and utilizes EcoVadis resources in connection with supplier sustainability due diligence and engagement. The Firm's procurement team has also utilized EcoVadis training and resources as part of the Firm's pursuit of responsible procurement practices.

4. POLICIES AND PROCEDURES

- 4.1 The Firm maintains a number of policies and procedures relevant to the prevention of slavery and human trafficking, including policies requiring ethical conduct by Firm attorneys and staff. The Firm also maintains policies covering topics such as equal employment opportunities, prohibiting harassment in employment and compliance with all applicable laws.
- 4.2 Gibson Dunn's Global Procurement Team seeks appropriate assurances (primarily through purchasing or services agreements) from its suppliers that they are complying with all applicable laws. In agreements with certain major suppliers, the Firm has secured the inclusion of rights to conduct on-site inspections and audits of the suppliers' facilities. This includes contracts in jurisdictions where there is a perceived elevated risk of modern slavery.

5. INTERNAL PROGRAMMES
